Policy department,

I am concerned about the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Ontario policy review of the Human Rights Code policy. Currently, doctors in Ontario have the right to refuse to provide non-emergency care that does not conform to their own moral or religious beliefs. This allows them to opt out of non-emergency care referral such as abortion and other medical care that violate their own conscience. I think that this policy should remain. We want doctors who have a conscience and can think on their own. We can't take that freedom from them. If doctors are forced to go against their own personal belief, medical care will never improve. We need doctors with compassion and a conscience.
