Attention: Policy Department

It is my conviction that forcing doctors to act against their own conscience based on moral and religious values is the beginning of the erosion of the cornerstones of human rights and the foundation of every free, democratic society.

Our society is both accommodating and respectful of immigrants who sought to live in our great country. Various people feel recognized, respected and acknowledged for their individualism.

Canada has room for participation by all.

To attack the conscience of individuals, namely, doctors in this instance... is the foreshadowing of a society that even policy makers won’t be able to foresee.

Let us look beyond the NOW
