I am disturbed by your proposal which would force doctors to act contrary to long held moral principles. Surely it would be wrong to force our doctors to go against their consciences.

I strongly urge you and all in your noble profession to oppose any requirement of doctors to perform any treatment requested by a patient, even though such treatment would be contrary to his moral principles, or a requirement that he refer the patient to a doctor who performs such treatments.