Dear Members of the Consultative Committee

Re: Draft Policy on Professional Obligations & Human Rights

Dear Sirs and Madams,

I am writing to ask you to very seriously consider your policy with respect to physicians' rights. I firmly believe that physicians should be able to make professional decisions based on their moral, ethical, and spiritual conscience. Since no physician can be an emergency, in such immediate situations, there is no need to force doctors to violate their conscience. The patient always has the right to pursue more investigation. Naturally, in cases of emergency, doctors should always act with their patients' well-being ahead of their own. But if the non-emergency is not immediate, then forcing a doctor to act against their conscience is a negation of democracy and an infringement of their rights.
