To the Members of CPSO,

As a conscientious citizen and resident of Ontario, I wish to respond to the recent developments re: the “effective referral mandate” which means physicians would have to violate their own conscience if they are unwilling to aid a patient to commit suicide, and refer this patient to another physician who would assist that person to end their own life. This is a violation of all that the medical profession has been founded upon and the constitutional rights of physicians in this country.

I remain respectfully yours, and ask that all physicians continue to exercise their own freedom of conscience, which this country has always protected.
